

Homelessness

Homelessness is a severe problem in Texas' largest city, Houston. It has about 10,000 homeless people. They sleep on the city streets every night. Some of them even suffer from different kinds of diseases, and they don't have the right care. They don't have a house or a job. It's bad that other people and the city don't spend much helping them. There should be a way that we can

People in America are supposed to have the American dream because the United States is the land of hope and opportunity. There should be no reason why there are people on the streets because the United States is one of the richest countries. The rates of homelessness have increased in the past decade up to 15%. The unemployment issues in America have affected thousands of citizens that haven't worked for years. They don't have a chance to go and work for at least a little, so they mostly depend on begging for money. This impacts our society because it causes our nation to look bad.

A lot of homeless people have injuries or diseases. They need money to pay the doctor's bill. This is sad. The poverty in the United States has increased, and homeless people have a hard life. Some of them even die of starvation. They have no shelter, and no food.

It's bad that there are many causes that lead to homelessness. People lose their house because of fire or flooding. This is bad that people don't have a house or job. The saddest is that people can die of starvation and diseases, especially during the winter when it's cold. We can help by donating a little food to the community services that work to help them. There are other things we can do like donating some money and clothes.

Jazmin Banda, 8th Grade, RYSS