

Homelessness

As you walk around your hometown, or just America, you notice a number of people asking for money, food or shelter. Don't you feel bad? I honestly think it's the saddest condition in America, especially when it involves the younger generation. Homelessness can also take many innocent lives of children because of their parents' way of living and the conditions.

I think that it would be a benefit if we could help by giving food or jobs to the homeless. Most of the homeless population is in poverty. Higher rent creates homeless families. When I see kids living poorly, I feel really bad, and I want to figure out ways to help them with their problems. If we work really hard together, and dedicate ourselves to these families in need, we could make a change in so many communities.
