Homelessness

Homelessness is all around the world, mostly in the United States. There are many reasons why people end up homeless. One of the saddest reasons is that people lose their homes because they fight in wars and if they get injured, they don't have enough money to pay their medical bills, so they have to sell all their stuff to pay them. It's a pretty sad story because these people are fighting for us, not only for us, but for our country. I think they don't deserve this, because they are doing something good for us, and we don't do anything to help them.

Another reason why people end up homeless is because they lost their homes to a hurricane, tornado, tsunami, or other disasters. They lost all their clothes, food, and other important belongings. Most people think that the homeless are crazy, weird, or scary. They are not. They are just trying to find help so that they can survive.

How do we stop homelessness? I have ideas. One idea is to have a group of people going around town and giving a plate of food to every homeless person. Also, schools should collect used clothes from students so that they can donate them to the homeless. Also, I think there should be a place like a home center for homeless people. They can stay there as they try to find a job so they can start over.

If you see a homeless person begging for money, give him/her some money, at least some change. Why? Because you never know if it was someone that fought in a war for our country and ended up homeless, or it might be someone who lost his/her home because of a hurricane. I think we should do this for the homeless because if we were in this situation, we would be begging for money. So the next time you see a homeless person, give him/her something. It will help.

I hope one of my ideas can be heard, and used to help the homeless. I really want to help because I feel bad for them. If I were them, I would be doing the same thing to survive. This is the least we can do.
