

Homelessness

When I see someone in the streets asking for money, it makes me feel bad and sorry for him/her. But at the same time, it makes me feel angry because there's something wrong with our country. We need to do something about this. We should march in the streets with big signs that say, "Let's stop homelessness!"

We should try to communicate with President Obama, and tell him he should do something about homelessness. He could create housing for them until they find a job, and get enough money to pay for their own apartment. Even little kids are homeless because many of them have run away from home. A lot of these kids run away because of being abused. They never go to school, and never get what they dreamed of. We have to do something because kids get hurt in the streets.

Some reasons for homelessness are: addiction, domestic violence, mental illness, job loss and underemployment, foreclosure.
