

Homelessness

It's hard to believe that in my hometown there are so many people living under bridges and in the streets. It pains me knowing kids my age aren't in school. Instead, they're begging for money to hopefully get something to eat. It makes me sad seeing people in the streets, especially in the winter, knowing its freezing. It makes me feel worse seeing the elderly and children mainly in the streets of Houston. People all around the world don't have money to support their families.
