

Homelessness

I think homelessness is really sad to see. But then again, that's their fault for not acting right when they were growing up. It was their choice. Even though they made that choice, I think we should help them get in a better situation. I think it's really messed up when you see veterans that are homeless because they really don't deserve that. If it wasn't for them, we might be dead or be forced to do something we don't want to do. The Government should give the veterans money after they get out of the service because they tried so hard, and did so much to help us.

We should raise money for more shelters so homeless people can go, and stay any time so they can be safe, be fed, and put back in school to learn. They should at least be in a safe place, and eat three meals a day like everyone else. And every once in a while, people should just donate some food to a shelter.
