The above Facebook page bio for Christopher Reeves:

He was born in New York - Christopher Reeves on Sept. 25, 1952, from parents Barbara Johnson and Franklin D. Reeves. His sibling is Benjamin Reeves. During his childhood days his friends nicknamed him Chris or Toph. He stood 6'4". He was married to Dana, and had a child with her - Will Reeves. He had two children before Will, and they are Matthew and Alexandra Reeves. He went to Cornell University and Juilliard School of Performing Arts where he shared a room with Robin Williams - a good and dear friend. I was a licensed pilot much like John Travolta. He is better associated with his character role as SUPERMAN and CLARK KENT. He and Jane Seymour made a classic movie together. They became best friends. He suffered body paralysis due to a horseback riding accident. He died on October 10, 2004 from a heart attack. He is survived by his children. This page is dedicated to his loving fans and amazing friends in and out of the entertainment industry.

By what I have read in this Facebook page, he was a great man. People have posted good things to say like "RIP Superman, you were the true Superman." and "I miss you very much, I love you." This says a lot about how much people loved him. Sadly, I haven't seen any activity lately. Luckily, I found one of his movies, "Superman I." It came out in 1978. Above, him in all his glory.

Above, him in his last days before he died.

In the UK, there is a lady called Claire Lomas who is paralyzed from the chest down. She is walking the London Marathon on a set of robotic legs to raise funds for Spinal Research. Please donate as much as you can to spur her on:

This is a cool comment because Christopher Reeves was paralyzed as well. Here is another comment which surprised me a little “THIS ACTOR, THE BEST! A WONDERFUL MAN AND THE BEST SUPERMAN OF HISTORY, IN MEMORY OF MAN OF STEEL! IN MEXICO, HE’S A FAMOUS MAN! THANKS.” I am amazed
