

A screenshot of the Facebook page for The Beatles. The page features a large black and white photograph of the band members. Below the photo, the name "The Beatles" is displayed in bold, followed by "27,270,783 likes · 192,243 talking about this". To the right of the name are buttons for "Liked", "Listen", "Message", and a settings icon. Below this, there are four tabs: "About", "Photos", "Likes", and "UK Store". The "About" tab is selected, showing "Musician/Band" and "The Beatles on iTunes: http://bit.ly/aXzDm8". The "Likes" tab shows a thumbs-up icon and "27m". The "UK Store" and "US Store" tabs are also visible, each with a logo and a dropdown arrow. The top of the page shows the Facebook logo, a search bar, and a notification icon with the number "29".

I think that The Beatles are the most famous band ever. Even though I haven't heard their music, I think they are really good. They seem that they had a busy life because they had to go to concerts.

Facebook comment: "If Paul and Ringo were to tour together again, they could play, "Yellow Submarine" live. But I think they should open with "Sgt. Pepper's Lonely Hearts Club Band" and then go straight into "With a Little Help from My Friends." I'm thinking of seeing it again, next weekend. I think it's only playing on one screen here in Northern Virginia."

Facebook mention: Your favorite Beatles tracks are out now as ringtones! Released today on iTunes, their 27 No1 tracks can be downloaded for iPhone, iPad and iTouch. You can even assign your favorite tracks to your favorite people. The Beatles on iTunes:

<http://bit.ly/leWu9C>

There's so much for me to learn about the Beatles because I really don't know that much about them. I have heard about them. That's what keeps them alive with their fans.

Facebook comment: Mark Bristow – "Every Beatles album suits a mood. 'Please Please Me' still retains the youthful raw energy of a Cavern performance. Difficult to split 'Rubber Soul' & 'Revolver'."

Facebook mention: Celebrating 60 years of British film and music - vote for your best Beatles albums, there are five that could win!

<http://www.hmv.com/jubilee>

Fans remember The Beatles as a band. There were four, now there are two still living. George died from a disease. John was killed by a fan. Ringo is still alive, but I don't know what he's doing now. Paul is still making music. They sure lived through a lot together.

<https://www.facebook.com/thebeatles>

Ariadna Suazo, 8th Grade, RYSS