

It is really interesting to see that there's a page about Abraham Lincoln even though he died a long time ago. He was one of our presidents. He tried to stop slavery because he thought it was something very horrible and unfair to do. He played a really important role in the Civil War. Sadly on April 14, 1865 he was assassinated at Ford's Theatre by John Wilkes Booth.

“How I wish he could live forever ... sigh he's a legend.” This person really likes what Abraham Lincoln did when he was President. I agree with her because he wanted to stop slavery and racism against African Americans.

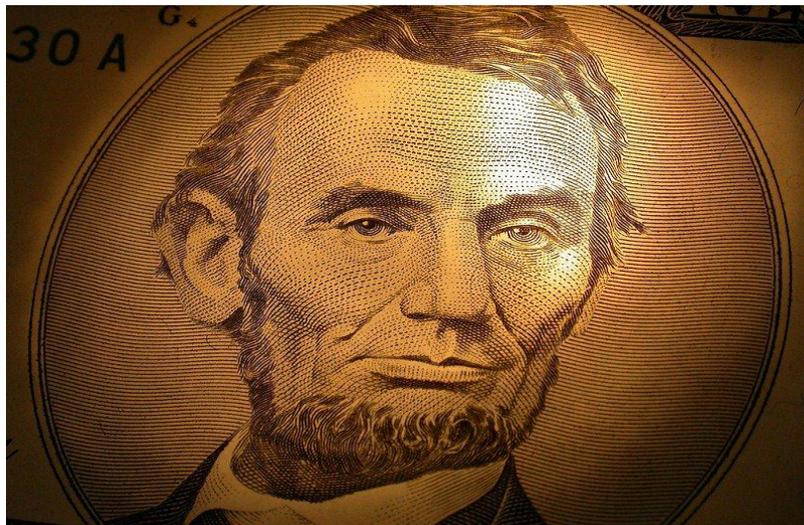

The following is one of his most famous quotes:

“If friendship is your weakest point, then you are the strongest person in the world”

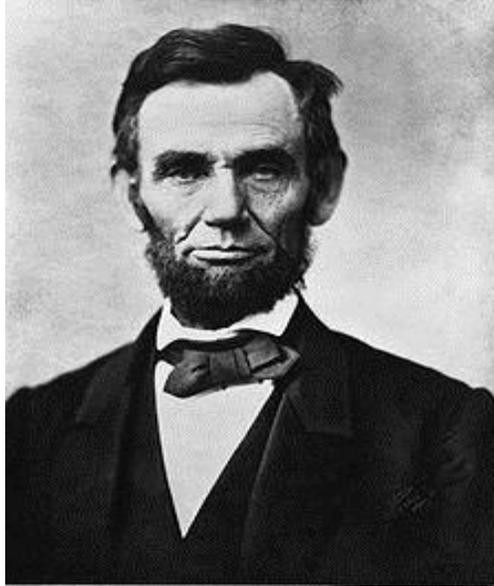

I think the quote has a lot of meaning, and it inspires other people. It looks like a lot of people respect and love him. They haven't forgotten about him even though he died a long time ago. I've seen a lot of posts saying how great he was as President. They wish he could still be alive.

“You were a big man. Your opinions changed history, and your legacy remains today. There cannot be slavery in any shape or form. Incredible men always have defects, no one is perfect. You came from less to be more, and your behavior reflected the personality of a genius. There is another idol well positioned in the history of my country. He has a very similar tale to tell just like you. Marco Fidel Suarez was his name. Strange people do not believe in natural talent sometimes, but natural talent strives on, and comes to light. Abraham Lincoln is an excellent example for young generations.”

I believe the above person has a lot of respect, and he sees Abraham Lincoln as a role model for young people these days. I think he is right because Abraham Lincoln fought for what he believed in even if it meant putting his life at risk.

Many people have much respect for Abraham Lincoln. After all these years, people still see him as a great President. He inspires people to be who they want to be, and not be afraid to speak out. Some people have negative things to say about him, but that's okay. Everyone has opinions. I think Abraham Lincoln was a good President because he tried to stop slavery, and I believe he was a wise man.

People have also created a statue in honor of Abraham Lincoln and his hard work. Many people come and visit this great art, and admire it.

Source:

<http://www.facebook.com/pages/abraham-lincoln/191952329335?ref=ts>

Kristel Torres, 8th Grade, RYSS