

Why? Why has the killing suddenly risen?

HOW MANY MORE TIMES?

We have heard the news, seen the shooter, and even heard about prevention acts for the schools to be protected. Even so, the problem will be here for time to take. With the act of prevention, and using the police, will our children grow up in school that does not feel safe? Also what is behind a shooter's past linked to it's present in the act to kill? Parents should be aware of what they teach their child and what the children learn from them.

We have choices, but which is the best choice?
Will we have a safe year?
Will our children live to see the next grade?

WHICH OF THESE SIGNS WILL PREVENT ANOTHER TRAGEDY?

Think of the options we have and the effects they will leave. Will the children fear the police, or die unprotected? Help to prevent America's next school shooting or face a nation loaded with guns in schools turning into horrible gun societies.

We all have a cost in this. We each have hatred, loss of control, and would consider the use of guns. We should heed the message in the young deaths. The question is, will we?

What is gun violence in schools?

In this situation to protect our children from shootings, adults have the say in why the shooter. As in what has pushed the shooter to kill students. Now gun violence in schools is a situation where a shooter is on a killing rampage. In such event, students are bound to be killed and the shooter may take jail or commit suicide to avoid life in prison. The shooter commits suicide not only to avoid jail but, he also does not want to take responsibility. Something many shooters at a school shooting would do avoid being punished. The law may not give him punishment but, the afterlife will.

Why should we?

Bullying and parents could be linked to gun violence in schools

Before we were all in the mess of gun violence in schools we had bullying as a problem. Bullying was the topic in 2011-2012 and should be for this year. Think about it, what could lead to a fight before violence? A gun of course. Now where could the child/student (etc.) can get the gun? The parents. As shocking as it is, parents could be blamed for not only buying a gun but, what he/she teaches her child. Think deeply now, would you ever teach your child (if you have a child that is) violence. No, right? Not true for some parents, as some (not even knowing) would show violence in fights, what TV shows they show to their kids, and even the games kids play. So basically, a child's behavior depends on how a parent treats the child and what he/she teaches her child. Bullying is also involved in this tragedy.

How do we prevent another tragedy in schools?

As we said about bullying being connected to the gun violence in schools, the bully is also responsible. Why? Well as you heard the victim would commit suicide but today, victims could take control of guns. I am not just talking about bullying in schools but, also parents bullying. Everyone should know about the crime of harming a child or the act of bullying their child. But what happens if the child has the upper hand with a gun in his hand? This is how it starts and then ends. Parents should go and talk to their child about how they feel about them and what is going on. Another should be to raise defenses in schools. Last of all, shooters should tell the children (especially teens) about how it feels to be the shooter and the effects it puts you in. There is a belief that a confrontation of a shooter and students (also the children) could really make them think twice before taking a gun and firing people.
