No Gun Violence in Schools

How to stop gun violence

Here are a few tips which will prove to be the best help stop gun violence like we can build a fortress-like school with higher fences, taller block walls, limit access to one gate, close the campus. Research by Cornell and others shows that school-age and college-age kids are not only safer but far more secure on school campuses than anywhere else. There's also broad agreement that the zero-tolerance policies popular in some school systems have had little to do with the decrease and may, in fact, have proved to be counterproductive, schools and middle schools. The shooters were almost always male, and to varying degrees not a part of the mainstream school social structure. Most were described as loners, the subject of bullying, and interested in guns or violent first-person shooter video games. In almost every case some other student or friend knew about their desire to shoot someone at the school but didn't take it seriously and therefore didn't report it.

How to prevent gun violence

The majority of youth gun violence prevention programs involve instruction carried out in schools, community-based organizations, and physicians' offices. They emphasize the prevention of weapon misuse, the risks involved with the possession of a firearm, and the need for conflict resolution and anger management skills. Educational programs often use videotapes to support their presentation of the tragic results of gun violence and may also include firearm safety instructions, public information campaigns, counseling programs, or crisis intervention hotlines.

What is gun violence in schools?

School violence is a big threat that is increasing by passing days. Violence is a traumatic event and when children suffer from violence in school, it is just a shocking incidence. Gun violence should be controlled in school so as to maintain peace. Young generation is very well aware of the gun violence in school as it is very common thing. But in this case it is the parents' as well as schools duty to stop the child from joining violent groups in school. This is possible by applying simple methods. Parents should support their kids in all ways when the children are suffering from mental tensions.
